DOCUMENTATION AND CODING

Mental, Behavioral and Neurodevelopmental Disorders

Accurately coding and documenting mental, behavioral and neurodevelopmental disorders can help capture our members' health status and promote continuity of care and better quality of life. To code for these disorders, it's important to capture details relevant to a patient's condition. These may include an underlying medical condition, a substance abuse disorder on top of a psychiatric diagnosis or history codes indicating issues such as trauma and stress. Below is information for outpatient and professional services from the ICD-10-CM Official Guidelines for Coding and Reporting.

Coding for Mental, Behavioral and Neurodevelopmental Disorders

There are two primary categories under the ICD-10 code guidelines for behavioral health: F and Z.

Category F (F01-F99): These codes include disorders of psychological development.

They also have classification designations such as:

- With or without behavioral disturbance
- Complicated or uncomplicated
- In remission
- With withdrawal

These designations require the provider's clinical judgment. The code specificity associated with the designations should only be captured when documented by the provider, such as with withdrawal or in remission.

Category Z (Z00-Z99): Z codes cover a range of stress factors and social needs that can contribute to behavioral health conditions. These social determinants of health (SDoH) may affect a patient's ability or willingness to follow their recommended treatment plan.

- Z codes describe symptoms a patient displays that don't point to a specific disorder but still warrant treatment.
- To learn about using Z Codes for SDoH, see our tip sheet.

Tips to Consider

- Include patient demographics, such as name, date of birth and date of service in all progress notes.
- Document legibly, clearly and concisely.
- Ensure providers sign and date all documents.
- Document how each diagnosis was monitored, evaluated, assessed and/or treated, as well as any complications on the date of service.
- Take advantage of the Annual Health Assessment (AHA) or other yearly preventative exam as an opportunity to capture conditions impacting member care.
